There comes a time when a woman just has to trust her husband...
A wife comes home late at night and quietly opens the door to her bedroom.
From under the blanket she sees four legs instead of two.
She reaches for a baseball bat and starts hitting the blanket as hard as she can.
Once she's done, she goes to the kitchen to have a drink.
As she enters, she sees her husband there, reading a magazine.
"Hi Darling", he says, "Your parents have come to visit us, so I let them stay in our bedroom. Did you say hello?"

DID YOU KNOW...

How to know which is lengthwise
the crosswise grain of the fabric?

The way to tell is to let the fabric SING to you.

Here's how:

Place one edge of the fabric in each hand
with some slack in the fabric.

Pull the fabric taught

It will make a sound.

Listen to the pitch of that sound

Now repeat in the other direction

You will notice a difference in the pitch of the sound

The HIGHER Pitch is the lengthwise grain

The LOWER Pitch is the crosswise grain!

When I woke up
this morning...

No wrinkles in sight.
The house was spotless.

The garden looked lovely.

And my grumpy bloke
looked like George Clooney.

I don't think I'll ever put my glasses on again.

To my friends who enjoy a glass of wine,
and those who don't and are always seen with a bottle of water in their hand.

As Ben Franklin said:
In wine there is wisdom, in beer there is freedom,
in water there is bacteria.

In a number of carefully controlled trials,
Scientists have demonstrated that if we drink
1 litre of water each day, at the end of the year
we would have absorbed more than 1 kilo of Escherichia coli, (E. Coli) - bacteria found in faeces.

In other words, we are consuming 1 kilo of poop.

However, we do NOT run that risk when drinking wine & beer (or tequila, rum, whiskey or other liquor)
because alcohol has to go through a purification process of boiling, filtering and/or fermenting.

Remember:
Water = Poop,
Wine = Health
Therefore, It's better to drink wine and talk stupid,
Than to drink water
be full of CRAP!

You could kiss laundry days goodbye with these new shirts

LONDON. It could spell an end to laundry days - or at least make them a much less frequent chore.

Manufacturers claim they have invented a shirt that stays clean even after 100 days of wear.

The garment resists odour so effectively that it even smells fresh after being worn during rigorous exercise, its makers claim.

It is also said to need no ironing as it is made of wrinkle-free material that can withstand even the roughest of treatment.

American company Wool & Prince said they developed the shirt for men who hate having to wash their clothes so often.

They sent researchers around the world wearing the shirts doing everything from backpacking in the Andes to dancing in sweaty New York nightclubs to test their design.

The shirts are made of wool which lasts six times longer than cotton.

Laboratory tests have shown that wool fibres resist tearing and can bend back on themselves more than 20,000 times without breaking.

Cotton breaks after 3,200 bends. Wool is also highly resilient to wrinkles because it has a natural crimp.

And the company said that while sweat itself has no odour, it creates an unpleasant smell when it remains on the skin and bacteria develop, but wool reduces this because it is more efficient than other textiles at absorbing sweat and evaporating it into the air.

The company has spent six months developing its trademarked Cotton Soft wool fabric for the shirts.

A spokesman said: "We use the finest wool shirting yarn out there - usually reserved for the luxury fashion industry. Our fabric will redefine what you think of wool."

The company said it did not expect anyone to wear their shirt 100 days in a row, and that they must be washed at some point.

One of the testers, consultant Aaron Flack, said: "I crumpled it into a ball and put it in the bottom of my backpack when I am running around the city just to see if I can ruin it. No luck - it comes out ready to wear every time."

The shirts are available to the company's investors starting at £50 (£670) each.

Normal retail prices have not yet been announced. - Daily Mail

SICK LEAVE DURING ANNUAL LEAVE

Question: If an employee falls ill or is injured while on annual leave, must the employee get paid sick leave? Or must the employee's annual leave entitlement be extended?

Answer: No, the employee does not have a right to any additional pay, nor does the employee get extra leave days for the days on which he or she was ill.

Brief explanation: There is a widely held belief that an employee is entitled to pay for absence due to illness or injury during annual leave. This is not the case. Section 22(5)(a) of the Basic Conditions of Employment Act of 1997 states that an employer must pay an employee for a day's sick leave the wage the employee would ordinarily have received for work on that day. This means that sick leave entitlement can only arise in circumstances where the employee would have worked if it weren't for injury or illness. An employee on annual leave would not work or be required to work during that period. He or she is therefore not entitled to paid sick leave.
